

Design for energy- limited environments

Despite technology's constant strive and success in achieving efficiency, many of these technologies still tax the environment a lot. Here are some design considerations for web applications but also for applications in general